Following the 100th Anniversary Celebration of the Lodge at Philadelphia at the same time, Mr. James, accompanied by his wife and son John will spend some time at Atlantic City and other eastern cities.

SAMUEL L. BUCK IS CALLED BY DEATH

Prominent Merchant and Postmaster of New Enterprise Dies at Home at That Place on Saturday Evening.

Samuel Longenecker Buck, a leading citizen of Morrisons Cove, for over thirty-eight years postmaster at New Enterprise and the last to bear the name of a pioneer family in that region, died at his home at New Enterprise on Saturday evening shortly after 9 o'clock, after an illness of several months. His three daughters and surviving sister were with him when he passed away.

Mr. Buck was the son of David F. and Barbara (Longenecker) Buck and was born March 24, 1848, near the place of this residence. He was married Feb. 20, 1873, to Charlotte Brennenman of Woodbury and is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. J. S. Ober and Mrs. R. D. Lininger of Coatsville, Pa., and Mrs. C. L. Brumbaugh of Bellwood, and a sister, Mrs. Amanda Ober, widow of O. S. Ober, of New Enterprise. Three grandchildren also survive, Phyllis and Kathryn Ober and Fred Lininger.

He was engaged in general merchandising for many years at New Enterprise, being the head of the firm of S. L. Buck & Co., for a period of twenty-eight years. For twelve years he was a member of the school board of the New Enterprise independent district and for six years he served as auditor of the school district.

Mr. Buck served for a period of twenty years as a member of the board of arbitrators appointed by the Blair county court and during that time he and his associates passed upon many cases affecting the Pennsylvania Railroad company. In all that time there was but one case appealed.

He was affiliated with the Brethren church throughout his life and served as deacon of the New Enterprise congregation for twenty-eight years as superintendent of the Sunday school for fifteen years. By reason of his long federal service and his connection with the arbitration board, Mr. Buck was well known in Blair county. He was a man of the highest integrity and held in high esteem by a wide circle of acquaintances and friends.

The funeral will be held in the Brethren church at New Enterprise at 10:30 o'clock on Wednesday morning and interment will be made in the New Enterprise cemetery.

P. O. S. of A. EXTENDS THANKS

Washington Camp No. 482 P. O. S. of A. desires to thank the people, the choir and the band for their interesting support in making Memorial Day at Brick Reformed church, Friend's Cove one to be remembered in the history of the Cove, and to show to the Civil War veterans as well as the boys of the late war that their names and valor will be forever recorded in the minds of the people. We also feel deeply indebted to the speakers for their valuable addresses proving that we owe a debt to these veterans which will take time to pay. Let us hope that these memorial days be so continued.

WAR OFFICE CLERK FIRED FOR NOVEL

R. J. Quinn's "Liar of the White Lion" Is Held to Be Objectionable Criticism.

Washington, May 28.—By order of Secretary of War Weeks, Robert J. Quinn, a $2,400 clerk in the Army Adjutant General's office and a Government employee for eighteen years, has been summarily dismissed following publication of a serial novel in which he is accused of belittling and ridiculing Major Gen. Harris, Army Adjutant General, and Col. F. W. Lewis of that office.

The serial entitled "The Liar of the White Lion" has been running in the Reclamationist, a small weekly published here in the interest of a "reclassification and regeneration of the civil service of the Government" and edited by Quinn.

Alleging that two "indivisible" characters in the novel are designed to portray himself and Col. Lewis, Gen. Harris had charges preferred against Quinn alleging "conduct to the prejudice of the good order and discipline and morale of the civil service."

Quinn countered by preferring charges against Gen. Harris, alleging he had shown favoritism in the conduct of his office and had used Government clerks and property for private purposes. He defended his novel as an expose of conditions which he declares should be remedied.

Gen. Harris was directed by Secretary Weeks to refund to the Treasury a sum sufficient to cover the cost to the Government of printing a booklet commemorative of the General's son, killed in France. Secretary Weeks said Gen. Harris had caused the type to be set in the War Department printing office and that while the total expense probably would not exceed $10 or $12 it was manifestly improper for a Government official to use official material and equipment for such a purpose.

FORMER BEDFORD COUNTESS DIES AT YONKERS, N. Y.

Simon Ross Gump, son of the late Samuel Stuckey Gump (at one time treasurer of Bedford County) and Grace Burns Gump, died on May 19 at Yonkers, N. Y. Ross Gump was born in Bedford County on June 17, 1876. He spent his boyhood days in this place and was loved by all who knew him for his loving and jovial disposition. As a young man he left Bedford and went to Pittsburgh, where he embarked in the furniture business and while located there was married to Miss Elizabeth B. Seaber of that city, who preceded him in death, on Feb. 12, 1920, having died at Chicago.

After leaving Pittsburgh Mr. Gump identified with one of Chicago's largest furniture manufacturing and until the time of his death was the leading salesman of this concern, having established a large business by his genial personality. He was a member of the M. O. K. T. and the Mystic Shrine. Since the death of his wife, Mr. Gump had made his home with his sister, Mrs. J. Weimer Bert at No. 2 Breach Terrace, Yonkers. The funeral services were held at the Bert home Friday evening, May 20, conducted by the Yonkers Commandery Knights Templar and Rev. Dr. Wilson of the Methodist church. The body was taken to Pittsburgh where interment was made in the Uniondale Cemetery, Allegheny, beside his wife and infant daughter. Surviving are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Arthur A. Bert, Mrs. J. Weimer Bert and J. E. Gump, of Yonkers, and Chas. B. Gump of Pittsburgh.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

The Twelfth Annual Convention of the Bedford County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in St. John's Reformed church, Bedford, on June 16 and 17.

Miss Amanda Landes, of Lancaster, Vice President of the Pennsylvania W. C. T. U. will be in attendance and will deliver the evening address. This announcement alone is sufficient to assure our citizens of a great convention to be.

Following the evening session, all W. C. T. U. members, including any who may join during the convention and visiting Union-Delegates will be entertained by the local Union, socially.

Delegates are urged to send their names at once to the entertainment chairman: Address Mrs. Joseph Galbreath, Fort Bedford Inn, Bedford, Pa.

L. D. Shuck, County President W. C. T. U.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Samuel Imier, a young farmer residing at Hughes Station and unmarried committed suicide by hanging on Monday night. Nobody can assign any reason for his act other than the loss of his mother, who died a few months ago and to whom he was very fondly attached. It was a great shock to the community.

Mr. Imier was born on Feb. 17, 1883 at Beiden, Pa. and was a son of David and Margaret (Shaffer) Imier, both deceased. He is survived by a brother, David I. Imier, of Bedford, and a sister, Mrs. William Blackburn, of New Paris.

Funeral services were held at Messiah Lutheran church on Thursday afternoon, Rev. W. H. B. Carney officiating. Interment in Messiah cemetery.

Living Costs Stationary Since March 1, 1921. Then 17.5 Per Cent Below the Peak.

FOOD AND CLOTHING LOWER; RENT AT ITS MAXIMUM

Retail Prices 21 Per Cent. Behind Wholesale in Drop—Dollar Buys 60 Cents' Worth.

As a result of investigation just completed into the prevailing business depression and the resultant living and working conditions for the average man or woman, it can be definitely stated that:

1—The cost of living which made a fairly sharp fall of 17.5 per cent between its peak last summer and March 1, has not fallen appreciably further in the last three months. It is still two-thirds higher than it was in 1914, and every dollar spent to purchase the necessities of life is worth only 60 cents, as compared with its normal buying power.

2—Retail prices of food and clothing have come down, respectively, 30.6 and 41.7 per cent from their highest wartime levels. Fuel and light have come down 11 per cent. Rent still stands at its maximum level.

3—Wholesale prices have come down 51 per cent, while retail reductions were only 30. The dollar which circulates in wholesale trade is now worth 65 cents, after going below 37 at its period of maximum depreciation.

4—About 25 per cent. of the factory workers in the country have lost their jobs since April 1920, or between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 persons. Factory employment now stands at only 92 per cent. of its 1914 level, which means that industrial labor has been completely "deflated" of the wartime additions to its ranks.

5—Despite depression and despite recurrent reports of wage cuts in many lines, industrial workers who have retained their jobs have suffered only a 9 per cent. loss in earning capacity in the course of a year, and this apparent loss is more than offset by the fall in the cost of living. The level of average weekly earnings of such workers is still very high, being $30 for the whole country against less than $18 in 1914.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

On Tuesday evening, May 31st, Rev. and Mrs. J. Albert Eyer celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary by entertaining the members of St. John's Reformed church. Invitations were issued to all the members of the church and to the husbands and wives of those who are members of St. John's. These invitations were accepted to the number of about two hundred. The "bride and groom" tried to keep secret the fact that it was a wedding anniversary but the people of St. John's are hard to "get ahead of" and of course they prepared a little surprise all their own so that in the midst of the happy festivities, the pastor and his wife were invited to come to the front porch where they found a most wonderful piano lamp all lighted up and in charge of Mr. Simon H. Sell who in a few appropriate and kindly remarks presented to the "bride and groom." Needless to say this act of kindness and love was much appreciated though the recipients found it difficult to find words with which to express their feelings. Some fine music was rendered during the evening by the girls of St. John's. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, coffee, salted nuts were served. The evening was perfect, in so far as the weather was concerned and both paragonage and lawn were filled with guests. It was an occasion serving to cement together more firmly the hearts and lives of pastor and people.

BOOR REUNION

Joseph W. Boor of Martinsburg, a former County Commissioner and resident of Bedford, who passed his nineteenth milestone on Sunday, May 22, together with his sister, Mrs. Ellen Wertz of Cumberland Valley, this county, who is 86 years of age, were guests Sunday of this week at the home of their brother, Balizer Boor, South Richard street, Bedford, who is 73 years of age. This family reunion was attended by a number of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. These brothers and their sister are hale and hearty, and their many friends hope they will live to enjoy many more family reunions. Yesterday "Uncle Joe" made a trip to his old home in Cumberland Valley and greatly enjoyed visiting the scenes of earlier days. His sister resides with her son, J. N. Wertz, in the Valley.

KOONTZ—LIVENGOD

On Wednesday evening, June 1st, at St. John's Reformed paragonage, Rev. J. Albert Eyer, using the ring ceremony of the Reformed church, united in marriage Mr. Albert Koontz of Bedford and Miss Mabel Livengood of Elk Lick, Pa. The groom recently opened in Bedford an up-to-date shoe repair shop and by his good workmanship, his kind and obliging manners has already made for himself a large number of friends who extend their best wishes to him in his new found happiness.

DAUGHERTY PLAYED BY FRELINGHUYSEN IN PATRONAGE ROW

Accuses Attorney General of Going Over His Head in Writing Jersey Republicans

HOT WORDS EXCHANGED IN HEAT OF CONTROVERSY.

Harding Said to Be Trying to Heal Breach Between Friends—"Double-Crossing" Charged

Washington, May 24.—Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey and Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General, are said to be in a hot row over patronage. The President is said to be trying to patch up the differences between his two intimate political friends, but the feeling between the two Republican hotspots is very bitter.

Frelinghuysen challenged the right of Daugherty to go over his head and write to New Jersey Republicans about jobs. He charged Daugherty, who has become very irritable because of the pressure of job hunters, flared up and denounced Frelinghuysen in such a manner that the latter wheeled on his heels and started out of the office of the Attorney General where the interview took place. Daugherty, it is said, called Frelinghuysen an ugly name and practically ordered him out of the building.

The stormy conference between Daugherty and Frelinghuysen was held one day last week and the facts about it are gradually leaking out. The New Jersey Senator, accompanied by his colleague, Walter Edge, and Hamilton F. Kean, Republican National Committee from his State, called on the Attorney General to go over the patronage situation.

Close Friend of Harding. Frelinghuysen, one of the closest friends of President Harding, who visited at his home in New Jersey just after the Chicago convention last summer, went after Mr. Daugherty hammer and tongs fashion, charging him with not treating him right in the distribution of offices. He said that he was trying to dictate the naming of New Jersey men to Federal positions and challenged his right to do that. Edge and Kean stood by and watched these preliminaries to the real row that followed, which was characterized by picturesque, if unparliamentary, language.

The Senator left the room, but Kean and Edge brought him back and continued and concluded the interview. The principals quit without making up. It was said to-day that an apology from Frelinghuysen is the only way to heal the breach between himself and Daugherty.

The Attorney General, members of Congress assert, has seemed to look for opportunities to cross them in patronage matters.

"Why," said one Senator to-day, "he should read his bible and be warned not to go out of his way and take a dog by the ears."

CLEARVILLE—RAINSBURG GAME

The Clearville base ball club won the deciding game of the series with Rainsburg on the Bedford grounds last Saturday by a score of 8-1. Rainsburg scored its lone run on errors in first inning.

May 30th the Clearville team defeated the Buffalo Mills team two games by scores of 14-6 and 5-4. First game was pitched for Clearville by R. Snyder. It was featured by three home runs by Buffalo Mills and Snyder's pitching. Second game was pitching battle between Claycomb, of Buffalo Mills and C. Snyder of Clearville. Feature of game was batting of Mundwiler for Clearville, getting triple double and single out of four times at bat. Also three base hits of C. Snyder and R. Barkman of Clearville.

Clearville Baseball Club.

FAREWELL PARTY

Miss Mary Ebersole gave a farewell party last Tuesday evening in honor of her brother, Herbert. Dainty refreshments were served. Those present were Mrs. Anna Shuck, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Ebersole, Misses Lydia and Emma Griest, Ruth Morgart, Helen Will, Lula McVicker, Helen Billman, Effie Metzger, Beatrice Allen, Messrs Herbert Ebersole, Carl Amick, Frank Guyer, Clyde Naugle, Harper Pepple, Dorsey Line, Clarence Leo, Robert Hackett and James Knight.

SCHNEIDER—STROCK

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, May 28th when at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Strock, their eldest daughter, Lillian, became the bride of Frederick J. Schneider of Philadelphia. Miss Louise Strock, sister of the bride was brides-maid while a brother of the groom acted as "best man" while Miss L. Durb Shuck played the wedding march. Miss Strock, leaning upon the arm of her father, marched into the parlor of her home, where in the large bay window a beautiful bower of flowers and ever-greens had been formed. Standing beneath this, her pastor, Rev. J. Albert Eyer, using the ring ceremony of the Reformed church performed the ceremony which made the happy couple man and wife. There were present a number of the relatives of both families. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Schneider will make their future home in Philadelphia, to which place the best wishes of a host of Bedford friends will follow them.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JUNE 5

MAKING THE NATION CHRISTIAN.

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 33:12, Prov. 14:34, Rom. 13:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.—Prov. 14:34.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Deut. 5:6-21, Psalm 78:5-7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Love for His Country.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Loving and Helping Our Country.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to Our Country.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Principles in Law and Government.

Not "Making the Nation Christian," if the lesson committee please. Neither of the passages chosen for today's lesson has any bearing on the title chosen by the committee. However, they do set forth some important teachings regarding the nation, and the teacher should carefully bring out their vital meaning. The New Testament nowhere teaches that any nation will be made Christian in this dispensation; but rather that Christ is gathering out from among the nations the people who shall constitute His church, showing that God's purpose is the salvation of individuals.

1. "Blessed is the Nation Whose God is the Lord." (Psa. 33:12).

This verse shows Israel's peculiar distinction. Israel is the only nation of which, in name even, it could be said that Jehovah was its God. He called this nation into being for a peculiar purpose. It was not a case where a nation chose God, but where God chose a nation for His own inheritance. It would be blessed to have an inheritance in God, but how infinitely more blessed to be God's inheritance! No nation can have Israel's unique place, but the nation which today gives God His rightful place in its affairs shall be singularly blessed. America has been signally blessed in the times when she acknowledged God. In the recent awful war when the national congress set aside a day of prayer, God heard the cry of His people and victory was given to the allies.

II. A Nation's Glory (Prov. 14:34).

The only fame for which a nation may justly be proud is righteousness, the rendering to all their dues. It is this that makes a nation strong and influential. A nation that sins—counts its sacred covenants as "scraps of paper," becomes an outcast among the nations and eventually goes down to ignominious defeat. The nation that has no righteousness as its standard has no right to exist.

III. Christian Citizenship (Rom. 13:1-10).

The believer in Christ is a citizen as well as a church member. Intelligent Christians will show loyalty to the state as well as to the church.

1. The Christian's obligation to the state (vv. 1-7). This obligation is upon all Christians. The reason this obligation is universal is that civil government is ordained of God, and the rulers are His representatives. So duty could not exist without government. It is God's purpose that man should live under authority. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God.

(2) The spirit of such obedience (v. 5). It is to be conscientious, that is, it is to be regarded not merely as serving a good purpose, but morally right.

(3) The nature of this obedience (vv. 6, 7). (a) Payment of personal and property taxes. The citizens who enjoy the benefits of government are morally bound to support it. (b) Payment of duty upon merchandise and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations expense is incurred, for which benefits the citizens should pay. (c) Veneration of magistrates. "Fear to whom fear." Those who fear God should venerate his representatives, that is, civil rulers. (d) "Honor to whom honor," that is, honor of civil servants because of the ministry they perform.

2. The Christian's obligation to his fellow citizens (vv. 8-10). This is summed up in the word "love." Love is a perpetual obligation. The only debt that is right to owe is that of love. Thus love forbids defrauding in matters of property, it forbids going into debt where there is no reasonable certainty of being able to meet the obligation, it forbids defrauding in matters of moral purity. Where there is love, adultery cannot be committed, it forbids murder, it forbids stealing, it forbids coveting for coveting means a desire for that which belongs to another, it forbids the working of any ill to one's neighbor.

The Lord's Sabbath.
And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily, my Sabbath ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you.—Exodus 31:12, 13.

The Righteous Should Rejoice

A CLEAN SWEEP

Tire History of 1921 continued Monday, at Indianapolis, to repeat the unbroken series of Oldfield Tire demonstrations which featured 1920.

In this, the world's greatest motoring spectacle, and famous for many years as "The Battle of the Tires," the race pilots of America and Europe showed so overwhelming a preference for Oldfields as to warrant the statement that Oldfield Tires have swept all competition off the Speedway.

Led by the victory every one of the money winners crossed the finish on Oldfield tires a demonstration of superiority unequalled in Tire History.

To the student of motoring such broad, practical facts stand out in bold relief from any background of mere sporting result.

For every motorist buys tires.

And the wiser he is, the more he appreciates expert guidance in a tire market filled with so bewildering an array of brands, grades and styles.

Forget, for a moment the spectacular side of this great race, and view it in its practical light, as a huge, million-dollar tire test, conducted for your sole benefit.

What is its message?

"For trouble-freedom, standardize on Oldfields?"

Expert endorsement—public proof—you have them both.

Make them the basis of your tire purchases henceforward.

How Race Drivers Pick Their Tires

Successful race drivers have just one standard for picking tires.

Trouble freedom!

That is the merit they seek, and no other consideration counts.

For tire trouble means the loss of precious time—perhaps bodily injury; freedom from it means success and safety.

I developed Oldfield Tires to reduce my own dangers of delay and accident.

They did the job. And today they are doing it for others—hundreds of thousands of them. They will do it for you.

You know me,

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

Towanda.—Narcotics and syringes valued at more than $400 were stolen from the Towanda office of Dr. George E. Boyer.

Monessen.—Reprimanded because she stayed out after midnight, Miss Mary Davidson, a 19-year-old domestic at the Grand Hotel here, attempted suicide by swallowing four bichloride of mercury tablets.

New Castle.—John F. Miller and Pete Kelon, farm hand at the Miller farm are now taking pasture treatment here, as a result of being bitten by one of the cows in the Miller herd recently attacked by a mad dog, and now being treated.

Gettysburg.—The battlefield commission has been notified by Colonel Lewis R. Stegman, chairman of the New York monument commission, that the legislature of the state has appropriated $12,000 to erect a statue to General Barlow on Barlow's Knoll along the first day's fight.

Greensburg.—More than 400 taxpayers from Cook, Donegal and Ligonier townships appeared before the county commissioners to urge the improvement of ten miles of highway between Ligonier and Stahlstown.

Pittsburgh.—Two of the heaviest sentences imposed here for thefts from interstate freight shipments were imposed by Judge Orr on Carl Smith, to serve five years and Nelson Foster to four years in the federal penitentiary. Chester Green was sentenced to two years. Gree. was charged with having in his possession leather which Smith and Foster were found guilty of stealing from a railroad car of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Mount Carmel.—Mrs. Frank Trocki, Kulpmont, died at the Shamokin hospital from severe burns. Last Tuesday, when boiling whisky and honey her her niece's wedding celebration the whisky boiled over, ignited and fired her clothing.

Greensburg.—Nick Dorazio and Tony, his brother, of Millwood, are prisoners in the county jail, charged with having sent threatening letters to Philip Perry, of Millwood. Three other residents of the town are alleged to have received letters also.

Wilkes-Barre.—While playing near her home on Moffitt street, Plains, Mary Kotzik, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lotzlik, was struck by an automobile, driven by James Frail, a mine foreman for the Conlon Coal company, and instantly killed.

Wilkes-Barre.—By his presence of mind Michael O'Brien, a stereotyper on a local paper, saved a 6-year-old boy from death. The boy's clothes were ignited by a sparkler and Mr. O'Brien hurried to him and smothered the flames with his coat. The boy's burns are very painful.

Altoona.—Beginning at once the front brakeman of 27 trains on the middle division of the Pennsylvania railroad, including all solid Pullman, mail and express trains, will be taken off. Twenty regular men will be reduced to extras and 20 extra brakemen will be laid off.

Pittsburgh.—Frank Scardamaglia and Fernando Colletti, who have been on trial in the federal district court, were found guilty of forging, using and having in their possession, passing, buying and receiving forged internal revenue stamps used on bonded whisky bottles.

Bethlehem.—Bethlehem council has received an official communication from Allentown council threatening to lay water mains in the Rittersville section of Allentown, now supplied by water from mains owned by Bethlehem, on the allegation that the water is poor and the rates high. Bethlehem council denied both charges, and said that the mains cannot be sold to Allentown because the city must derive enough revenue from its recently-purchased water plant to satisfy the purchasers of $1,700,000 worth of bonds.

York.—Brought here to answer for the murder of Gabriel Perrachia and James J. Critchlow, fellow-workmen, at City, years ago, Curtis C. Sipple is said to have stated to local officers his confession previously made to the state policeman who arrested him near his home in Kentucky. To District Attorney Rochow, Sipple said that the past two years, in which he was a constantly haunted man, had been like a bad dream. He displayed no emotion when showing photographs of his alleged victims, took a short time after the finding of their bodies.

Bloomburg.—A county organization of American Legion posts was formed here, with A. W. Day, Jr., chairman.

Hazleton.—Chief of Police George W. Brownson announced that he will recommend to city council changes in the traffic ordinance in effect here, so that its provisions will conform with the standard regulations adopted at the national conference of police department officials held recently at New York.

Lock Haven.—The Lock Haven Rotary Club was organized with W. T. Griffith temporary chairman and Norman L. Hecht temporary secretary.

Towanda.—Samuel Mazzo, convicted here of violation of the Brooks license law, was fined $600 and costs and given four months in the county jail.

Altoona.—The Central Pennsylvania Funeral Directors' Association elected Homer E. Tobias president.

Hazleton.—Only 13 of Hazleton's 167 teachers failed to reapply for their positions when the school board elected for next year all who wanted to return.

Conshohocken.—The curfew ordinance adopted by town council at the April meeting will be enforced this week. The Conshohocken Washington Fire company will sound its siren at 9.15 each evening, after which all children under 16 years of age, unless escorted by parents or guardian, must be off the streets. Children unescorted will be detained by the police unless the child bears a note of permission from a parent stating that the bearer is upon a necessary errand. If, after being notified the parent does not appear the child will be taken to the house of detention by the policeman.

Harrisburg.—The new state inheritance tax law, which doubles the levy on collateral inheritances, has been ruled to be effective as of May 1, the date when approved by the governor. No change is made in the state tax on direct inheritance, which remains at 2 per cent.

Sunbury.—The Northumberland County Mothers' Pension Board met here and considered the business of the month, including the granting of 69 orders for pension for deserving widows. The county now disburses $15,000, half of which is paid by the state, and could very easily use twice as much, giving it all to persons who are entirely deserving, it was said.

Sharon.—After being knocked senseless, gagged, bound and tied to the state in his store, N. S. Klein, a Farrell clothier, was robbed of $1087 by three strange foreigners. Klein had just opened his store when one of the men entered and made a small purchase. While he was making change the other bandits, heavily armed, entered and forced him to throw up his hands. A blow from the fists of one of the trio knocked him unconscious. The robbers then took $987 from his inside coat pocket and $100 from the safe. Klein was able to give the police a good description of the men, but they have not yet been apprehended.

Brownsville.—When Frank Remplish, 46 years old, and Jerry Brenlick, aged 36, failed to turn over their money and valuables as quickly as five young burglars thought they should, they were shot down in their home at Allison, near here. Remplish was instantly killed and Brenlick is in the Brownsville General Hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen. According to the story of the shooting as told by Mrs. Brenlick, five men broke into their home and ordered Remplish and Brenlick to throw up their hands. As they did so the quintet opened fire and Remplish fell dead.

Altoona.—Falling down stairs, James Morgan, 79, retired merchant, suffered concussion of the brain and died. He was a Civil war veteran.

Harrisburg.—Bids for construction of about eighty miles of state highway will be opened by the state highway department this week, including some projects on which bids were asked last year, but considered too high. This will be the third largest letting this year, and it is hoped at the department that the decline in prices will be reflected in advantageous bids for the state.

Carbondale.—Joseph Colandro, 45 years old, known as "Black Joe," and alleged to be one of the most important members of a black hand society here, was arrested. The police had been told by several of the black handers rounded up last week that Colandro was high up in the "order." Colandro walked into police headquarters with two friends to obtain information relative to a business matter and was placed under arrest. Several additional arrests will be made within a few days.

Boyetown.—Levi D. Gresh, of this place, has been appointed valedictorian, and Miss Adelaide M. Kerchner, of Lineboro, Md., salutatorian of this year's class at Gettysburg College.

Red Lion.—Rev. Dr. A. G. Fasnacht was re-elected treasurer of the West Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church for the twenty-fifth term, and Rev. C. F. V. Hesse, of this place, president.

Harrisburg.—Members of the public service commission will formulate procedure in the enforcement of regulations governing manning of trains, the commission having been charged with the duty of inquiring into complaints relative to the safeguarding of trains in the bill signed a few days ago by the governor repealing the full crew law. The commission has decided a number of cases in which questions were raised as to the interpretation of the full crew law, and under the new act will have jurisdiction just as it has in other public utility cases.

Dubois.—Miss Bertha Heifer was crowned queen of the May at Wilson College, having been elected by the seniors.

Altoona.—Colliding with a railroad telephone booth while alighting from a moving freight train near Windber, Charles C. Shingle, 33, brakeman, of this place, was knocked under the wheels and so mangled he died several hours later.

Ligonier.—Using kerosene oil to make a fire in the kitchen stove resulted in the probably fatal burning of Mrs. William Albright, of this place.

Westmoreland City.—Harry Krolick, aged 5 years, was killed by a passenger train while playing on the tracks.

Greensburg.—Four murders were committed in Westmoreland county during the month of April, according to the monthly report of Coroner James K. Harkins.

Farrell.—Council voted to cut the wages of all borough employees 10 per cent.

Shamokin.—John Erra, of this city, was stopped by a lone highwayman, who robbed him of $80, then beat him.

BASED ON EVIDENCE OF BEDFORD PEOPLE

Grateful thousands tell it—If weak backs made strong—Of weak kidneys made well. Urinary disorder corrected. Bedford people add their testimony.

They praise Doan's Kidney Pills. Bedford evidence is now complete. Bedford testimony is confirmed; Reports of early relief substantiated.

Merit doubly proved by test of time.

Let a Bedford citizen speak.

Mrs. Martha Davidson, 357 W. Pitt St., says: "I was very nervous and had severe headaches. My back ached constantly and the least bit of work tired me. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I decided to give them a trial and got a box at Heckerman's Drug Store. In every way they acted just as represented and gave me prompt relief."

OVER SIX YEARS LATER, Mrs. Davidson said: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills once in a while since first endorsing them and they have kept me in good health."

Chess vs. Checkers.

Chess appeals to mature minds, and wood supplies most of the accoutrements with which it is played. Some of the best are of ebony and boxwood, but very satisfactory games may be played with yellow poplar, bass wood, walnut, maple and birch outfits, says the American Forestry Magazine. The same holds true on checkers, but that game usually is rated a little lower than chess in scientific points, though no less an authority than Edgar Allan Poe holds that as a mental exercise of the highest and purest sort checkers surpass chess.

Chinese Medical Practices.

In 796 the Chinese began to vaccinate. There were three vaccination stations in which the concoction was poured into the mouth. Stone needles were used to puncture swellings and the idea was not introduced into Europe until centuries later. Cauterization was practiced by burning the rolled leaves of a small plant. It was held to be good for rheumatism and nosebleed. Anesthetic effects were produced by certain mushrooms and the root of aconite. Cases of skin grafting are early recorded.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

Timely Announcement For Winter Feed.

County Agent L. R. Mollenauer announces that if any of the farmers in this section have clover fields that were damaged by the late freeze they are likely to find themselves short of high protein roughage, especially those with dairy and beef cattle to feed. He says that probably the best catch crop to fill this need is soy beans sown at the rate of about one and one-half bushels per acre any time up to June 15th. The freeze damaged the clover in parts of this country and in south-eastern counties, and the Pennsylvania State College agricultural extension department advises a checking up of the damage in this county.

For sowing soy beans, the grain drill can be used set for sowing two bushel oats per acre. For hay a rather large-growing variety such as Wilson, Medium Yellow or Brown or even Mammoth Yellow should be used. Some fertilizer, preferably bone or acid phosphate should be used for the best results. Inoculation with Culture or soil from a field where beans showed root nodules last year should never be neglected. Uninoculated beans may grow fairly well on good soil but are generally yellow, smaller, lower in protein and more exhaustive to the soil than where inoculation is attended to. A small amount of soil may simply be mixed with the moistened beans.

The beans should be cut for hay before the leaves begin to yellow and fall or before the season is too far advanced to furnish fair curing weather. The stage of maturity is not vitally important. The hay should be put in cacks when wilted, and left until dry enough to store. It is not seriously hurt by bad weather and has a feeding value similar to or superior to good clover. Ten pounds of Sudan grass is sometimes mixed with a bushel of beans to add bulk to the hay and improve the handling and curing.

POINT

The Memorial Day services on Monday at Schellsburg were fine. The address made by Supt. Hinkle was enjoyed by the large crowd who heard it. The Boy Scouts, Sabbath School children, Odd Fellows and Patriotic Sons attended in a body. The only thing lacking was the old Veterans who for so many years attended and marched in the parade. They have nearly all answered the last roll call. Only four old veterans of the Civil War could be mustered for the occasion. They were the following: Frank Manges, Bard, Pa.; Allen Hambaugh, New Paris, R. C. Smith and Josiah Hissong, of Point. There are only two veterans of the Civil War in Schellsburg now, Capt. W. W. VanOrmer, who has not been sixty feet away from his home for six months and John Ellenberger, who is blind and confined to his bed continuously and is taken care of by his daughter, Mrs. Shaffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelley and son, of Johnstown were evening guests of the family of your correspondent on Monday. They returned to Johnstown on Monday night.

Mr. C. P. Smith and son and Ross Studebaker and wife, of Braddock, were guests on Sunday night of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Manford Beckley, of Braddock, arrived on Monday evening for a short vacation at Mrs. Beckley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Smith and other relatives and old neighbors in this community.

Mr. Albert Gohn started the masons to build the wall for his new barn on Monday. It will be rushed to completion as quickly as possible. John Blattenberger, an experienced stone mason, has the contract for the stone work.

FROM REMOTEST PARTS OF GLOBE
Tanlac Elements Come From Lands Far Away From Here

The ingredients from which the celebrated medicine Tanlac is made, come from remote sections of the earth, and are transported thousands of miles over land and sea to the great Tanlac Laboratories at Dayton, Ohio and Walkerville, Canada.

The Alps, Appennines, Pyrenees, Russian-Asia, Brazil, West Indies, Rocky Mountains, Asia Minor, Persia, India, Mexico, Columbia and Peru are among the far away points from which the principal properties of this remarkable preparation are obtained.

What is said to be the largest pharmaceutical laboratory in the United States has been completed at Dayton, Ohio, for the manufacture of Tanlac which, according to recent reports, is now having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world; over 20,000,000 bottles having been sold in six years.

The new plant occupies 60,000 square feet of floor space and has a daily capacity of 50,000 bottles. Uniform quality is guaranteed by a series of careful inspections by expert chemists from the time the roots, herbs, bark and flowers are received in their rough state from all parts of the globe until their medicinal properties have been extracted by the most approved processes. The finished medicine is then bottled, labeled and shipped out to tens of thousands of druggists throughout the United States and Canada to supply a demand never before equalled by this, or any other medicine.

GRAND PIANO

Steinway & Sons—four successive generations have consistently pursued the work of tone building, rather than elemental piano making. Adequate string length is necessary to produce volume of definite degree and artistic tone quality. In Style M, the smallest Steinway grand, the scale is drawn in miniature to the concert grand and every quality of the concert grand is reproduced in degree to size. In like proportion the price of the Steinway Style M should be very much greater than that of any other small grand; but the fact remains that the price is very moderate—a result of economical production in quantity.

BUICK PRICE REDUCTION

EFFECTIVE JUNE 1, 1921

Buick has startled the Motor Industry and gladdened the hearts of the motor buying public with A PRICE REDUCTION EXTRAORDINARY.

A little longer in coming 'tis true, but a real worth while reduction, and in time for the summer motoring season. A factor also is this that the 1922 Models and series of cars are brought in on this date, June 1, 1921, hence the fact that the purchaser of a Buick has the assurance of having a Model which is a step ahead of any other car, and a very important fact when looking ahead to the Buick's resale value in later years. (A later Model "adds to it's value")

"BUICK IS ALWAYS A STEP AHEAD"

FARM ANIMALS

CLEAN PENS ARE IMPORTANT

Development and Perpetuation of Roundworms Is Fostered by Manure-Covered Lots.

Investigations reported in a recent technical publication of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, disclosed additional evidence of the importance of keeping young pigs in clean pens that have not been contaminated by other swine.

A roundworm of pigs, known as Ascaris suum, is held responsible not only for many deaths among swine, but for a large proportion of the runts among these animals. Development and perpetuation of the roundworms is fostered by badly drained and manure-covered hog lots, which are on this account dangerous to young pigs and not good for pigs of any age.

Eggs of the parasite may remain alive in soil for five years and even longer. Places occupied by pigs harboring the adult worms in their intestines will become badly infested with the eggs. Pigs farrowed and kept in such places are certain to pick up many of these eggs, and even sucking pigs are liable to swallow eggs present in dirt adhering to the teats of the sow.

Investigations by the bureau have proved that after the eggs have been swallowed and have hatched in the intestine the young worms do not immediately settle down, but penetrate the wall of the intestine and travel to the liver and the lungs. From the lungs they crawl up the windpipe and then down the esophagus and return to the intestine. Only after they have passed through the lungs do they establish themselves in the intestine and grow to maturity.

In passing through the lungs the young worms cause more or less damage to these organs. Pneumonia may result and the animal may die about a week or ten days after infection. Symptoms of this pneumonia among pigs are commonly known as "thumps." Not all cases of "thumps" come from this source, but the worms are frequently the cause. Young pigs are more susceptible than older pigs to infection, and are also more likely to suffer severely from migration of the young worms through the lungs.

There is no treatment for the lung stage of the parasite. If the pig survives he may later be treated with form remedies to remove the worms from the intestine. In such cases, however, it commonly happens that the animal has been so seriously injured through the lungs that even after their expulsion from the intestine the pig is unable to make up for the setback he has received, although he does better than if allowed to go untreated.

PROVED SIRE OF HIGH VALUE

Breeders Could Make Much Improvement by Paying More Attention to Male Animals.

The breeder who is making real progress is the man who pays a proved sire. Breeders could improve their business by paying more attention to this part of their business. Steps should be taken to prove out the sire before he is widely used or before he is discarded.

WHY HOGS LIKE TO WALLOW

Animal So Constructed That He Does Not Perspire and Must Cool His Body in Water.

The hog is so constructed that he does not sweat, or perspire, but must cool his body either in the shade in moderate weather or in water during high temperatures; so, just as it is natural for the duck to swim, the hen to scratch, or the mule to kick, so it is for the hog to wallow.

Chapter VIII Continued from last week.

"I do. The engine was stolen all right, that very night. Kirgan, our master-mechanic, has known it was gone, but he has been keeping quiet in hopes he'd be able to find the engine without making any public stir about it."

"The story, as it has been handed on to Branderby, is pretty badly muddled," the editor went on. "There was something in it about an attempt to wreck and rob the Fast Mail, and something else about sending a note to somebody at the Bullard—a note that 'would do the business,' was the way it was put."

"That note was sent to Mr. Norcross!" I broke in excitedly, taking a running jump at the guess.

"If you will wait until Branderby comes in, he may be able to give you more of the particulars," Cantrell was beginning to say; but good gosh—I couldn't wait. I was scared stiff for fear I shouldn't be able to get back to the round-house before Kirgan started out on that engine-rescuing trip.

"That's enough," I gasped; "I'm gone!" and I tumbled down the two flights of stairs and sprinted for the railroad yard, reaching the round-house not one half-second too soon. Kirgan was there, with Gorchor and two firemen. They had a light engine out on the trunk track and were filling her with water.

"They took Mr. Norcross with them on the Ten-Sixteen!" was all I could say and then I guess my late electric knock-out got in its work to pay for the quick sprint down from the newspaper office, for I keeled over into Kirgan's arms and sort of half fainted, it seemed.

Because, when I came to, right good again, Kirgan had me upon the fireman's box, with an arm around me to hold me there: Billy Gorchor was on the other side of the cab, niggling at the throttle; and the light engine was clicking it off about fifty miles an hour on the straight piece of track between Portal City and Arroyo.

CHAPTER VIII

A Close Call

At the "Y" siding we stopped—without going on to the gravel track where Gorchor had seen the lost 1016—and Kirgan and I got off with a lantern. This was because, on the way down, I had managed to tell the big master-mechanic about the Cantrell talk, though I hadn't succeeded in making him believe that it accounted for Mr. Norcross' drop-out. Just the same he humored me by having Billy Gorchor stop, and now he was trying to make me take it sort of slow and easy as we stumbled out toward the stem of the "Y." That was Kirgan's way. He was as hard as nails with a gang of men, but he could be as soft-hearted as any woman when a fellow was all in. And he knew I wasn't half "at myself" yet, physically.

"Don't get too much hope up, Jimmie," he was saying, as we humped along around the crooking track of the "Y." "We ain't goin' to find anything out yonder but a rusty loggin' track and that broken rail connection. You see, I've been here before and I know."

He was as right as could be. When we reached the end of the "Y" there was the broken connection, just as he'd said. The old saw-mill track was still there, leading off in the dark up the gulch, but the two switch rails had been taken out and the switch itself was as rusty as if it hadn't been used in years.

"What you heard from Mr. Cantrell may have been all true enough," Kirgan said, while I stood swallowing hard and staring down at the broken rail connection, "only it didn't have anything to do with the big boss. Them thugs was probably plannin' to wreck the Mail, all right, and they came down here to do it. The Lord only knows why they didn't do it; praps there wasn't time enough, after they'd got the 'Sixteen in on the gravel track."

I only just about half heard what he was saying. He had the lantern, and its light fell squarely upon a cross-tie a foot or two beyond where we were standing. It was the last tie in the empty string from which the two rails had been taken up to break the connection with the lighter saw-mill track steel, and what I was looking at was a fresh spike hole, fresh beyond all question of doubt because there was a clean new splinter of the wood sticking up beside it—a splinter that had been broken out when the spike was pulled.

I took the lantern from Kirgan in my own good hand, and he stood there waiting for me while I walked on out to the chopped-off end of the saw-mill track, examining the loose ties as I went along. There were fresh spike holes in some of the others; just one here and there. But that was enough. After I had knelt to hold the lantern close to the rails of the rusty timber track I knew my hunch was all right.

"Come here, Mart!" I called, and when he came, I showed him the new holes and new wheel-marks on the old rusty rails of the timber track that proved as clear as daylight that an engine or a train had been over them away this side of the rains and the snows that had rusted them.

Kirgan didn't say a word—not to me. He just took one look at the rubbed rails and then yelled back to Gorchor to run out on the "Y." What followed went like clockwork. There were tools, a spike-puller and a driving-maul, on the light engine's tender, and while the two firemen were throwing them off, Kirgan made a couple of swift measurements with his pocket tape.

"These two, right here, boys," he ordered, indicating a pair of rails in the other leg of the "Y," and in less than no time the two rails were up and relaid to bridge the gap of the broken connection.

I suppose we poked along into the black heart of the timber range for as much as five or six miles before the engine headlight showed us the remains of the old saw-mill camp lying in a little pocket-like valley from the sides of which all the mill timber had been cut. The camp had been long deserted. There were perhaps a dozen shacks of all sizes and shapes, and with a single exception they were all dilapidated and dismantled, some with the roofs falling in.

The one exception was the stout log building which had probably served as the mill-gang commissary and store. The ties at this end of the line were so rotten with age that our engine was grinding a good half of them to powder as she edged up, and a little below the switch that had formerly led in to the mill, Kirgan gave Gorchor the stop signal.

After we had piled off, there wasn't any question raised as to what we should do. Kirgan had taken a hammer from Gorchor's tool-box, and he was the one who led the way straight across the little creek and up the hill to the commissary.

When we reached the building we found the windows all boarded up and the door fastened with a strong hasp and a bright new brass padlock—the only new thing in sight. Kirgan swung his hammer just once and the lock went spinning off down the slope and fell with a splash into the creek. Then he pushed the door open with his foot, and shoved in; and for just one half-second I was afraid to follow—afraid of what we might find in that gloomy-looking log warehouse, with its blinded windows and locked door.

While I was nerving myself and stumbling over the threshold behind Kirgan with the lantern, I heard the boss' voice, and it wasn't the voice of any dead man, not by a long shot! From what he said, and the way he was trimming it up with hot ones, it was evident that he took us for some other crowd that he'd been cussing out before.

The light of the lantern showed us a long room, bare of furnishings, and dark and musty from having been shut up so tight. In the far end there were a couple of bunks built against the log wall. On what had once been the counter of the commissary there was a lot of canned stuff and a box of crackers that had been broken open, and on a bench by the door there was a bucket of water and a tin cup.

The boss was sitting up in one of the bunks, and he was still tearing off language in strips at us when we closed the door. He recognized Kirgan first, and then Gorchor. I guess he couldn't see me very well because I was holding the lantern. When he found out who we were, he stopped swearing and got up out of the bunk to put his hand on Mart Kirgan's shoulder. That was the only break he made to show that he was a man, like the rest of us. The next minute he was the big boss again, rapping out his orders as if he had just pushed his desk button to call us in.

"You've got an engine here, I suppose?" he snapped, at Kirgan. "Then we'll get out of this quick. What day of the week is it?"

I told him it was Friday, and by his asking that, I knew he must have been so roughly handled that he had lost count of time. The next order was shot at the two firemen.

"You boys kick that packing-box to pieces and then pull the straw out of that bunk and touch a match to it. We'll make sure that they'll never lock anybody else up in this d-d dog-hole."

The two young huskies obeyed the order promptly. In half a minute the dry slab stuff that the bunks were built of was ablaze and the boss herded us to the door, and a minute or so later we were all climbing into the cab of the waiting engine.

We had to run so slowly down the old track to the "Y" that there was plenty of chance for the boss to talk, if he had wanted to. But apparently he didn't want to. He sat on the fireman's seat, with an arm back of me to hold me on, just as Kirgan had sat on the way up, and never opened his head except once to ask me what was the matter with my wrapped-up hand. When I told him, he made no comment, and didn't speak again until we had stopped on the leg of the "Y" to let Kirgan and his three helpers put the borrowed rails back into place.

"You say it's Friday," he began abruptly. "What's been going on since Monday night, Jimmie?"

I boiled it down for him into just as few words as possible; about the letter he had left for Mr. Van Britt, how everybody thought he had resigned how Mrs. Sheila and the major were two of the few who weren't willing to believe it, how Mr. Chadwick had been out of reach, how the railroad outfit was flopping around like a chicken with its head chopped off, how President Dunton had appointed a new general manager who was expected now on any train, how Gorchor had discovered the lost 1016 on the old disused gravel-pit track a mile below us, and, to wind up with, I slipped him Mr. Chadwick's telegram which had come just as I was finishing my supper in the Bullard grill-room, and those two others that had come on the knock-out night, and which had been in my pocket ever since.

He heard me through without saying a word, and when I gave him the telegrams he read them by the light of the gauge lamp—also without saying anything. But when the men had the "Y" rails replaced he took hold of things again with a jerk.

"Kirgan, you'll want to see to getting that dead engine out of the gravel pit yourself. Take one of the firemen and go to it. It's a short mile and you can walk in. Jimmie and I want to get back to Portal City in a hurry, and Gorchor will take us." And then to Gorchor: "We'll run to Banta ahead of Number Eighteen and get orders there. Move lively, Billy; time's precious."

We made Banta at a record clip. While he was in the Banta wire office, getting orders for Portal City, Mr. Norcross took the time-card out of its cage in the cab and fell to studying it by the light of the gauge lamp.

Gorchor came back pretty soon with his clearance, which gave him the right to run to Arroyo as first section of Number Eighteen.

The boss blew up like a Roman candle when he saw that train order. It meant that we were to take the siding at Arroyo with the freight that was just behind us, and wait there for the westbound "Flyer," the "Flyer" being due in Portal City from the east at 9:15, and due to leave there, coming west, at 9:20. I didn't realize at the moment why the boss was so sizzling anxious to cut out the delay which would be imposed on us by the wait at Arroyo, but the anxiety was there, all right.

"Billy, it's eighteen miles to Portal, and you've got twenty minutes to make it against the 'Flyer's' leaving time," he ripped out. "Can you do it?"

Gorchor said he could, if he didn't have to lose any more time getting his order changed.

"Let her go!" snapped the boss. "I'm taking all the responsibility."

That was enough for Gorchor, and the way we hustled out of the Banta yard was a caution. In exactly eight minutes out of Banta we tore over the switches at Arroyo. That left us ten miles to go, and twelve minutes in which to make them. It was easy. A yardman let us in on the spur at the end of the headquarters building, and the boss was off in half a jiffy. "Come along with me, Jimmie," he commanded quickly, and I couldn't imagine why he was in such a tearing hurry. Pushing through the platform crowd, made up of people who were getting off the "Flyer" and those who were waiting to get on, he led the way straight upstairs to our offices.

Of course, there was nobody there at that time of night, and the place was all dark until we switched the electric on. There was a little lavatory off the third room of the suite, and Mr. Norcross went in and washed his face and hands. In a minute or two he came out, put on his office coat, opened up his desk, lighted a cigar and sat down at the desk as though he had just come in from a (Continued next week)

AMERICAN TROUBADOURS.

AS IN THE PAST, the Redpath management is offering one of Chautauqua's best attractions on the opening day. The American Troubadours, appropriately costumed, include trombone, piano, saxophones, clarinet and cornet in their instrumentation, and also offer vocal numbers, quartets and a variety of readings. At the head of the company is Esther Landis, trombonist, pianist, soprano and reader. Ira F. Vail, Marlon Witham, John W. Collins and Donald S. Witham likewise are important members of the company.

ANNOUNCED FOR CHAUTAUQUA'S SECOND DAY

WHITE'S ORCHESTRA.

MEMBERS OF THIS VERSATILE GIRL COMPANY, which is to be heard on Chautauqua's second day, are Kathryn White, soprano and drummer; Lorraine Ernst, first violinist; Selma Banta, second violinist; Marguerite Jardine, saxophonist, and Florence Fiedler, pianist and mezzo-soprano.

Favorite With Many Classes

ELWOOD T. BAILEY.

FEW LECTURERS have spoken to as many men in such a variety of vocations as has Mr. Bailey, who is to give his "All Aboard!" lecture on Chautauqua's opening night. His experience ranges from mass meetings in shops and mines to noon-day club meetings in the largest cities. He toured the training camps in this country during the war and spoke to American soldiers in the United States, France and England.

MR. RATTTO'S performances are full of life and action. They consist of the types of characters one meets in average American communities, or of noted men, past and present, as in the case of his "Historic and Patriotic Review." He cleverly and quickly presents his characters in "make-up," pencilling in full view of the audience, telling an appropriate story the while. Pencilling finished, he turns to the table mirror, adjusts his wig and faces about to surprise you with the accuracy of a character distinct in appearance, speech and actions, with a personality all its own.

Alice was staying with her father one evening while her mother was away. The father, while reading, was wiggling the floor lamp and Alice spoke up: "You know mamma does not want you to play with that lamp."
She waited a minute, then added: "If you will give me a nickel I won't tell

The latticed snowshoe resembles in a general way a large tennis racket, with the handle missing. The body of the shoe is two or three feet long and twelve inches or more wide at the broadest part, says the American Forestry Magazine. The rim is of ash, hickory or elm. The ski is made of beech, birch, maple, ash or spruce.All in the Children's Library.
Said Alice: "Consider what you have in the smallest chosen library. A company of the wisest and wittiest men that could be picked out of all the civil countries in a thousand years have set in best order the results of their learning and wisdom. The men themselves were hid and inaccessible solitary, impatient of interruption, fenced by etiquette; but the thought which they did not uncover to their bosom friend is here written out in transparent words to us, the strangers of another age."Essay on Geese.
The following composition on geese was written, according to Capper's Weekly, by a schoolboy in St. Louis:
"Geese is a heavy-set bird with a head on one side and a tail on the other.
His feet is set so far back on his running gear that they nearly miss his body. Some geese is ganders and has a curl in his tail. Ganders don't lay or set. They just eat, loaf and go swimming. If I had to be a geese, I would rather be a gander. Geese do not give milk, but give eggs, but for me, give me liberty or give me death."

MANAGEMENT

The success of any business enterprise of magnitude, depends to a large degree on the way it is managed. The first great requisite is HONESTY; the second BUSINESS ABILITY, both of which are essential to success. The management of this company is in the hands of men who first of all are absolutely honest and in addition are capable, experienced and successful business and professional men of this community.

HOLDINGS

Our Company owns approximately 1300 acres of proven gas and oil leases in the now famous Burnsville field which is located in Salt Lick District, Braxton County, West Virginia. We also hold options on considerable acreage in the oil producing territory of Gilmer County, West Virginia. The Directors are contemplating the drilling of four more wells between now and November 1st, 1921, on these leases in this very productive field.

PRODUCTION

The present production is sufficient to meet all dividend requirements from a gas well on Farm of D. W. Singleton in Braxton County, West Virginia.

DIVIDENDS

Quarterly dividends of 3% to net the investor 12% per annum payable January, April, July and October. You will not only receive dividends regularly but your shares will increase in value as the company's production increases. Why leave your money in a Savings Bank at 4% when you can just as well make 12% or more? Remember there are two sources of profit in an oil investment. One is the dividends which are always liberal, and the other is the increase in the value of your shares.

PROFITS IN OIL AND GAS

Do you know that the oil and gas business of West Virginia has within the past five years made one-thousand millionaires, that whole multitudes of people have made money in it to a greater or lesser degree? Is there any other business in the country that has made or can make such a showing in the same length of time?

PERCENTAGE OF FAILURES

What do you suppose is the percentage of failures in the oil and gas business as compared with some other lines of business? Listen to a United States Government report, signed by David P. Day: There are thirty-two per cent more failures among farmers, twenty per cent among manufacturers, and twenty per cent more among bankers than in the oil business. How many large oil companies have ever failed? How many can you name? Bear in mind that we are now a producing and marketing company, and in the near future our shares will be worth many times their present value so we feel safe in saying that anyone buying stock in our company at this time will make more money than he could through any ordinary investment, not to say anything of the big chance of his shares making him independent for life.

A FEW REASONS WHY SUCCESS IS OURS

Remember we don't have to find oil or gas to pay twelve per cent dividend per annum as we have already a producing well which will assure this. All men connected with the company are capable and reliable and fitted for the positions they hold.

We only drill on the best proven acreage. Nowildcat development whatever.

Capitalization sufficiently large to give strength and permanency to our company.

Operating only where the largest and longest lasting producing gas and oil wells are found.

POSSIBILITIES OF OIL INVESTMENT

Glance a moment at the following lists of stocks of various oil companies and see the astonishing figures reached by some of them. One hundred dollars in Home Oil Company brought $40,000; One hundred invested in the Hog Creek Oil Company brought $23,000. One hundred invested in Lucille Company brought $16,000; One hundred invested in the Peerless Oil and Gas Company $4,500.00. These are only a few instances of what one hundred dollars has done for others. Thus, you will see, investments of this kind offer greater returns to the small investor than any other business he can find.

RECOMMENDATION

We strongly recommend this stock to every investor who is looking for a safe, remunerative investment, that is already on a sound financial basis and full of splendid possibilities for the future.

PRICE OF STOCK

The price of our stock was advanced to $1.50 per share, on May 15, 1921, and those who have taken advantage of our Initial offering of $1.00 per share the Par value of our stock have already made 50% on their investment. Thus, you see, that if the plans of the company to drill four more wells is carried out as it surely will be, this stock may be worth from three to five dollars per share, as each producing well will make this stock advance a corresponding amount in the market and as there is only a limited allotment of our stock offered for subscription at $1.50 per share, therefore, the right is hereby reserved to reject any application or to allot a smaller amount than applied for in case of oversubscription. We, therefore, advise your purchasing this stock while it can be had at this unprecedented price. Remember that big fortunes are not made by the four per cent route "Safety First" doesn't mean holding your savings, but investing them wisely. If it were coal, steel, corn or potatoes, you would readily agree that these conditions make the investment safe, but because you once heard of a man whose grandfather took a chance in oil, (but was not given a chance) you have formed the habit of thinging of oil from that viewpoint. Extreme caution has saved you the hundred dollars that your neighbor invested and lost you the thousand he made in profits.

IT'S UP TO YOU

If interested in a good, safe and reliable proposition, drop a card to the CUMBERLAND OIL COMPANY, CUMBERLAND, MD., and we will have our representative Mr. Ray M. George, call on you and explain everything in detail.
